

The Tumbleweed Invasion!

A New Mexico town was buried in tumbleweeds - literally. Blustery winds blew the tumbleweeds into the town of Clovis.

"It looked like a herd of cows coming in," said a Clovis resident. "The tumbleweeds were just rolling in."

It is dubbed the "Tumbleweed Invasion" by residents. The tumbleweeds filled backyards to the brim. There were massive walls of tumbleweeds and some homeowners got trapped in their homes.

One Clovis resident couldn't leave his home because it was surrounded by tumbleweeds.

"Couldn't get out of the garage," he said. "Sky high, couldn't get out."

Another resident called 911 because his backyard was buried in tumbleweeds.

"The lady asked what was the emergency and I told her we were covered in tumbleweeds and we couldn't get out of the house," he said.

The tumbleweeds were blown in by winds traveling 60 miles per hour (96 km/h).

The tumbleweeds have been cleared and life is back to normal. But no one will forget the Tumbleweed Invasion.

Have you ever been stuck at home because of the weather?
What happened?
What did you do all day?