

Bubble Wrap Invention

Bubble Wrap is our first and favorite choice for packing material because it's so lightweight and cushiony.

But Bubble Wrap is a stress-reliever as well! There's something positive and fun about popping those little pockets of air and listening to the popping noise. It's very satisfying.

How was Bubble Wrap created? Well, it wasn't created by a moving company! It was a failed experiment by engineer Alfred Fielding and his partner. Bubble Wrap was created in a 1957 as a cool sci-fi wallpaper!

Maybe, after seeing their 'wallpaper', they were horrified by their lack of interior design skills. Because the team changed directions and decided that the bubbles would be better for protecting fragile items during delivery.

In 1960, they created the Sealed Air Corporation. Their company still exists and holds the trademark on Bubble Wrap!
